Hark! the gospel news is sounding,
Christ has suffered on the tree;
Streams of mercy are abounding,
Grace for all is rich and free.

Now let us all with open hearts look to Him who died for us.

What a wonderful sight it will be!

When we see all the saved of the world,
Oh, what a sight 'twill be when The Army we shall see!

As numbered as the winds on the seashore!

Numbered as the winds on the seashore!

As numbered as the winds on the seashore!

Young People's and Bandsmen's Page

THE accompanying photo is that of the Life-Saving Scouts' Brass Band which has recently been formed in Toronto, Canada.

The band were taken through a course of the fundamentals of music which lasted a month, and then commenced with rehearsals. In the first month they had made their initial public appearance at a得意 demonstration in the Central band day.

Major Wilson, the National Y.P. Secretary, has had the pleasure of seeing the Scout section of the work great progress. He has written to him to tell him that a beginning has been made in the introduction of the most useful additional activity afforded.

Practically all the members of the band are most enthusiastic workers in their own Corps, and the writer has on more than one occasion noticed that real red-hot testimony whenever occasion required or allowed?

The band have passed right through the Juniors, and Major (who has had the oversight of the Y.P. work since its inception as a separate section of our activities here) can tell you that the band of them all are truly the sons of their fathers, of them all as looks at them, they are truly his boys!

The band is limited and consists of six members, and a beginning has been made, and it is hoped that in time real progress will be reported in all respects.

Value of Struggle

An "old hand" at golf swings his club with well-aimed precision, and the impact of ball and club sent forth a tremendous roar, which was as music to the players.

The new member of the club now addressed himself to the ball, and sent it flying into the other's cup. He did not lack either skill or a friend knew the game. Nevertheless, the ball flew but a few yards, and dived straight into a gully.

"Cheer up, boy," said the old hand. "It won't come all at once, you know."

"I'm glad it won't," answered the young player. "The game wouldn't attract me much if skill and experience didn't count. I expect to gain in both, and failing just now only re-enforces my determination."

That is the right spirit. The things worth winning, both in this life and that which is to come, are worth long and patient struggle to obtain. The true warrior

How to Be Saved

to forgive all my sins, to receive me into His favor, and to make me unworthy as I am, a member of His family.

SIXTH STEP
Consecration

I promise God, here and now, in His strength, and with all my heart, that He will forgive me and receive me into His favor, and to make me unworthy as I am, a member of His family.

A striking sidelight upon the position of women in Mohammedan countries is furnished by Dr. Kar Kuan, who, in a recent article in the China Mail, says: "A little girl, a daughter of Alexander, Egypt, a little boy making mud pies in the front of the house. His mother stepped into the room and called, 'Come in, come in!' The boy was not answer from the four-year-old.

She then went out into the room, first calling the girl, who was now up to her mother, and laid a kiss, her mother hand upon the child. 'Come, little one, I will give you sweets—'

Her husband at that moment came round the corner, and waited to see what would happen. The child turned to him, and said, 'I will give you sweets—'

The father came up, and instead of striking her, as he had intended, he patted her on the head, and said: 'Brave little fellow—'

Her husband at that moment came round the corner, and waited to see what would happen. The child turned to him, and said, 'I will give you sweets—'

He will in his wife's eyes, and in his own, be a man, because he has been born with all my heart just now, as a poor, helpless, guilty sinner, seeking salvation, and trusting in the love of God. I have done wrong. He will not reject me. Nay, as well as I can, I believe that He does at this very moment take me in. He forgives me now, and I am a man again. He has taken all my sins away. He was wounded for my transgressions; He was bruised for my iniquities; the punishment I had to bear has been laid upon Him, and with His sufferings I am healed. I am forgiven. Praise the Lord! Jesus saves me now!

The CHRISTMAS WAR CRY

TO BE ON SALE SHORTLY

THE SPECIAL CHRISTMAS NUMBER of the War Cry, in addition to being richly illustrated, contains a large and interesting section of reading matter, to which the attention of readers is called with every confidence as to the result. As is fitting, the premier position is given to an inspiring article by The General. Under the title of "The Creator of Love," our Leader gives expression to thoughts which, unless we are mistaken, will find an echo in thousands of hearts throughout the Dominion, and the intimate note running through the whole is emphasized in the concluding passage in words which, if memorized, would be a means of blessing, not only during the Christmas season, but right through the coming year.

Will Carry Much Weight

Mrs. General Booth contributes a message which, if somewhat brief, is calculated to go far and carry much weight. We commend it every word to our readers.

"Let Us Go to Bethlehem" is the invitation extended by the Territorial Commander for Canada East, Commissioner W. J. Richards, and it constitutes a heart-to-heart talk, not one word of which anyone can afford to overlook.

Extending as does the sale of the Christmas War Cry over the whole of the Dominion of Canada, it was to be expected that the Territorial Commander of the Western Territory would be a contributor to this Special Number, and readers will be well repaid by a study of the full page article which Commissioner William Eadie has written upon "Redemption Through His Blood."

A full-page article on "Victory over Suffering," by Colonel S. L. Bremge, is specially dedicated to the shut-ins and the aged, and is set in bold type to ensure greater ease in reading.

"God's Way of Dealing with a Soul" is a very human story of how a girl found Salvation; other narratives of absorbing interest are contributed by Army writers who, by means of their pens, have already done much for many.

A Christmastide Victory

"Will Trust and Not Be Afraid" is a story of a Salvavation Army daughter's Christmastide victory in the home circle. "Jabez Was Not the Jonah" is a thrilling account of how the shipwrecked crew of the Newfoundland barque "Mary Ann" reached port. "Captain Kindheart's Conquest of Five Forks City" forms a splendid chapter in the great story of the Salvation War, and so also does "The Remittance Man," a moving story which links up England and Canada in the working out of a very real conversion.

"The War Cry of the World" tells in entrancing fashion of a Sister Truehope's experience with a number of Christians, visitors; "The Story of Gideon" gives a telling picture into the life of a well-known Army hero. The opening chapters of a new serial story, "A Valiant Soldier of the Cross," will create an interest in succeeding issues of the War Cry, and this interest will be found to be well maintained right through the story.

Types of Army work in various parts of the world are shown in special contributions from India, Java, Holland and Canada West, and a number of other features, including a page of music for the piano, go to make up what is considered to be the best Christmas War Cry yet published in Canada.
